BRITISH PAPERS SEE NO GOOD IN GEORGE'S HOME RULE PROPOSAL

LONDON, Nov. 13.—Many newspapers united in the opinion that the Irish Home rule which was passed by the house of commons last night will not bring peace to Ireland. Premier Lloyd George dissembles his love with such qualifications that his professions of good will carry no more weight than a Russian rouble and now he offers a peace of exchange, the home rule bill, which is impudent in its futility, said Northcliffe today.

His newspaper added: "Nobody believes that the measure will work out and nobody wants it."

"The bill is not wanted in any quarters," said the Morning Post. "It will maintain no tenable position between union of the Empire and the separation by Ireland. It is an experiment."

Some of the newspapers termed the new home rule law an armistice between England and Ireland. Only three of the morning newspapers commented on the passage of the bill.

The Times in addition to its comment printed a statement by Cardinal Bourne. Cardinal Bourne reveals that in 1910 he urged the Duke of Norfolk to support the widest self government for Ireland, Wales and Scotland. He said he was convinced that the majority of people will accept self government for Ireland, Wales and Scotland and desire their withdrawal but at the same time he pointed out that evidently a secret oath bound the society that was using assassination for a weapon.

"I am assured that the Sinn Fein disclaims all connection with this society and that the Sinn Fein leaders deplore and disavow its aims and deeds," wrote the Cardinal.

"But at the present time the Sinn Feiners are unable to control the murder band."

Premier Lloyd George made an impassioned plea in the house of commons just before the final vote was taken on the home rule bill.

"I implore Ireland to remain within the Empire which she has helped to build and adorn," said the Premier. The Premier outlined three "immovable conditions" of the government:

- 1.—That Ireland should not become an independent state.
- 2.—That Ireland should not weaken the strategy of the defense of the United Kingdom by depriving the English government of complete control of the Irish Harbors.
- 3.—That South and Central Ireland should not coerce Ulster (the anti-home rule district).

The chief features of the new home rule law which supplants the home rule bill passed at the outbreak of the war follow:

Two legislatures shall be established, one for north Ireland the other for south Ireland.

The people of the six Ulster counties shall not be brought administratively under an outside parliament in Ireland.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—The forces of Gen. Baron Wrangel, anti-Bolshevik leader in the Crimea, have evacuated Sebastopol, says a delayed dispatch from Constantinople dated Thursday.

The above dispatch if authentic confirms cable advices that have come from various sources during the last few days to the effect that Gen. Wrangel's army is in a serious plight. All indications are that the Bolshevik forces are within reach of the greatest military triumph since they drove the Poles back behind the gates of Warsaw. Unless they are stopped in the eleventh hour as they were in front of the Polish capital their re-conquest of the Crimea and the consequent surrender of their most formidable foe seem certain. After the Polish armistice Trotsky proclaimed to the world that now Wrangel's turn was coming and the Soviet war chief lost no time taking measures to carry out this threat.

Ever fresh masses of Bolshevik troops were transferred from the western to the southern front and the pressure on Wrangel has been growing fiercer daily until early this week Trotsky forces reached the ice-covered Putrid river and began to pour into the Crimean peninsula, smashing straight ahead for Wrangel's last line of defense. Since then the outlook for Wrangel's army has grown more and more pessimistic.

In London the terrific battle for the Crimea is being watched with comparative equanimity, but dispatches to Paris have caused grave alarm, for Wrangel is the protegee of the French government. The French have pinned their hopes on Wrangel for the recovery of millions borrowed from the French by the Czarist regime.

FIVE CEMETERIES IN EUROPE FOR OUR DEAD

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—Secretary of War Baker announced today that he had approved the action of the war memorials council designating four permanent cemeteries on the continent of Europe and one near London as the resting places for American dead in the World war.

The European cemeteries are located at Surmes, near Paris, Romagne in the Argonne, at Belesau Wood, and at Bony in the department of the Aisne known as the Flanders fields. The cemetery in England is on the outskirts of London.

Secretary Baker announced that there would be no grouping of bodies according to military rank in these cemeteries and no variation in the headstones except in the individual inscriptions.

An emblem signifying the religious faith of the man may be added within the rosette on the headstone however.

No memorial except those specifically approved by the secretary of war will be permitted in the cemeteries and warning is given against soliciting funds or attempting funds for such memorials unless they have been approved.

When the dead have been collected in the permanent cemeteries the government will erect stones in various cemeteries where they were temporarily interred.

Official Mercury Reading Here Was Fifteen Above Sat.

Fifteen degrees above zero was the low mark of the fall touched by the mercury in the official government thermometer kept by Mrs. Ada Jeffries, local weather observer early Saturday morning. The weather had begun to moderate Saturday afternoon and warmer, fair weather is promised for Sunday.

Reports from over the county showed temperatures varying from 15 degrees at several places to 12 at Fresno and one report declared the thermometers at Bacon Run went down to 5 degrees. This, however, is believed to be a mistake.

GAS SHORTAGE COMES WITH COLD WEATHER

With thermometers registering the lowest temperature of the season, Coshocton, as well as many other Ohio cities, experienced a serious gas shortage Friday afternoon and evening. The pressure dropped almost to the zero point and many homes, dependent upon gas, were decidedly chilly and housewives had difficulty in preparing the noonday and the evening meals.

The local company has been expecting to have the pressure increased by additional gas turned in from another line at Granville and it is said that as soon as this additional supply comes on there will be adequate pressure in Coshocton. Meanwhile the weather bureau's promise of slowly rising temperature Sunday is reassuring.

A report from East Liverpool states that a gas shortage trailed in the path of the first snowfall of the season and gas was shut off pottery kilns in order to meet the demands of domestic consumers. Lancaster reports that the coal yards there are empty and many people are burning wood, the gas pressure having fallen to zero.

The report shows that about two thirds of this sum was expended for printing, the remainder largely for office expenses and salaries.

FIRST WEEK OF REVIVAL CLOSSES

The services at the Methodist Protestant church on Thursday evening were full of interest and inspiration to all in attendance and the leaders were much encouraged at the goodly number that came into the services. The song service was of a patriotic nature and preceding the sermon evangelist singer Nyburg sang a very impressive solo with the Booster Choir taking the refrain "Over the Top for Jesus". The message delivered by the pastor was on "The Great Armistice".

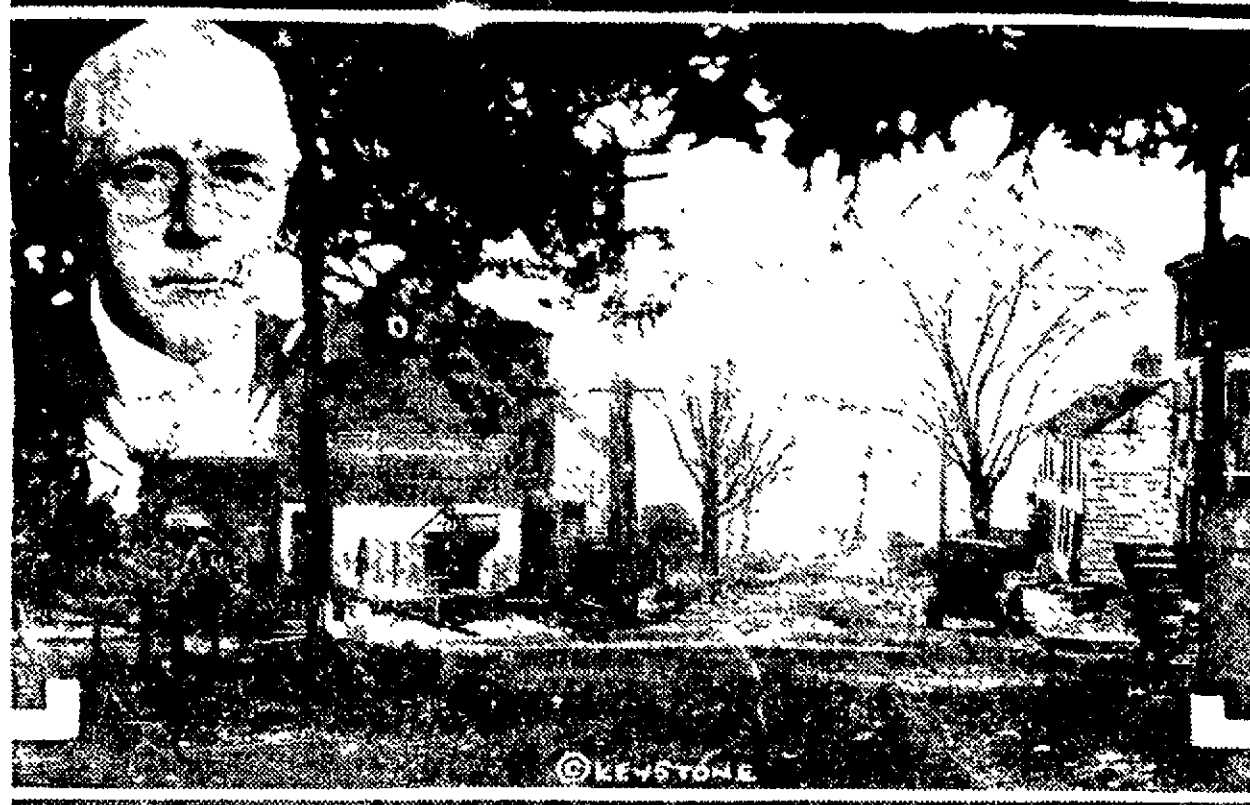

Last evening the service was also well attended and interesting and the leaders feel that the first week of the meeting has been a good week. Sunday services will be held at the regular hours 10:45 and 7. The public is cordially invited to get the benefit of these services.

OWNER OF STOLEN AUTO NOT LOCATED

Sheriff Cullison has learned that the license for the stolen Cadillac automobile captured Friday morning on the Coshocton-Keene road was taken out by a traveling man named McCoy, who registered at the McKinley hotel in Canton. McCoy has not been located but it is expected that some one will be here soon to identify the car.

The man arrested by Patrolman Fretagge Friday morning is being held at the county jail. No trace has been found of the other two men who escaped.

VANDERLIP BUYS VILLAGE—WILL MAKE MODEL COMMUNITY

General view of Sparta, N. Y., as it is now, and portrait of Frank A. Vanderlip, who plans to make it a model village.

The little village of Sparta lies half a mile south of Sing Sing prison and not far from the fashionable Scarborough-on-the-Hudson district. It has been a popular place with joyriders, gay parties and undesirable characters. But it's going to be made a different place, according to Frank A. Vanderlip, New York banker. He has bought the entire village and plans to remodel its present houses, build new ones and ask the undesirables to depart.

WARSAW BARBER SHOP DESTROYED BY FIRE TODAY

Harry Zollers' barber shop in Warsaw was destroyed by fire Saturday morning. Flames from an overheated gas stove ignited the woodwork in the shop.

The flames made their way into the roof of the second-story before residents were able to stop their spread.

The building in which the barber shop is located is owned by W. W. Frederick of Coshocton. The damage done to the building is estimated at more than $100.

The fire was extinguished by the residents after several minutes fighting the flames. The fire fighters succeeded in preventing the flames from spreading to other buildings in the same block. The Grey Bros furniture store, I. S. Post office, Sigman's grocery, Lyman's restaurant, Dr. J. A. Honabarger's dentist office and Slicker's meat market are all in line with the barber shop in the same block. The Warsaw bank is just across the street.

It was that at first that the entire block would be destroyed. The inhabitants became so alarmed that they called the Coshocton fire stations for aid. The fire was put out soon after the call was sent in to the local department, and the Coshocton apparatus was not called upon to make the nine mile run.

The fire was extinguished by the use of water and fire extinguishers. The interior of the barber shop and the roof of the building were destroyed.

CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—A new era in baseball dawned today, is the opinion of major league magnates, the grand old national game is all set for the most prosperous and harmonious period in its history.

Appointment of Judge K. M. Landis as head of the new governing body of baseball and his acceptance of the past were hailed in baseball circles everywhere as a master stroke.

While all of the baseball magnates who attended yesterday's meeting mutually agreed not to make individual statements, Garry Herrman, former chairman of the national committee declared he would take the liberty of expressing his views. He spoke as follows:

"The new agreement reached amicably by the 16 major league magnates at their meeting yesterday looks toward a new era in baseball. The game will be more prosperous and free from every taint of corruption. The appointment of Judge Landis as head of the new national commission is the greatest thing that has been done for the game in years."

"Judge Landis is a practical baseball fan. His decision in the Federal League case, altho it was never rendered because the Federal League suspended before the issue was settled was one of the greatest documents ever drawn up in any baseball controversy and proved his thorough understanding of the game."

Under the new dispensation the American and National Leagues will continue to operate as formerly and will control their own affairs.

Judge Landis the new Solomon of the pastime will adjudicate inter-league disputes. The judge will receive a salary from baseball of $42,000 per year for the next seven years. The single issue remaining to be settled is the relationship between the major leagues and the minors.

A new national agreement is to be adopted after ratifications by a committee composed of six major league players each from the National and the American Leagues and six minor league players. This committee is to assemble within thirty days and its resolutions will be sent back to the big leagues and to the minors for approval.

GAS IS CUT OFF FROM FACTORIES IN SPRINGFIELD

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio, Nov. 13.—The gas was shut off this morning from manufacturing plants when the pressure dropped to three ounces.

Manager E. D. Abbott of the Springfield gas company, will order all customers cut off except homes, hospitals and food supply companies. If the temperature drops further, snow and a lowering temperature created a big demand for gas.

Wesley, You Bad Boy!

DAYTON, Nov. 13.—Wesley Fink, large land owner and father of eight children, five of whom appeared in Federal court with him this morning, was fined $100 and costs and given six months in the workhouse by U. S. Judge Sater. Revenue officers say he had one of the largest stills in the community on his farm near West Alexander.

HOME BREWING INGREDIENTS ARE SALABLE

Revenue Bureau Qualifies Decision By Specifying Against Mixtures

SELLER MUST JUDGE

Home Brewing Can Not Be Stopped If Liquor Is Non-Intoxicating

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—Home brewing ingredients may be sold but sales must not be under circumstances showing they are to be used for unlawful manufacture of intoxicating liquor. This interpretation was placed today upon the latest "dry" law ruling, that persons selling home brew products under circumstances that are held illegal will be prosecuted.

Commissioner Williams flatly declared that home brewed beer manufactured in the home for beverage purposes, even for the sole use of the family and bonafide guests is illegal according to the revenue bureau's construction of the Volstead law. He likewise holds the sales of materials for such purposes is illegal.

Williams ruling is virtually a reiteration of an old ruling but differently phrased, and quotes for the most part the wording of the Volstead law.

The ruling lays emphasis upon the selling of home brew materials, specifically for use in beer brewing. It is still possible officials said for buyers to obtain separately malt syrup, malt extract, hops, yeast, sugar and other ingredients without running counter to the bureau's ruling.

The bureau's principal complaint is against the practice of selling the ingredients in the form of mixtures or compounds bearing formulas for best making.

Officials gave this view according to the ruling. No serious efforts will be made by the bureau to stop home brewing, as this was one of the few "immunity" provisions of the law intended by congress, not to prohibit the making and consumption of strictly non-alcoholic beverages within the home.

His son's body was found in the river near the Norfolk and Western railroad bridge and it was never learned whether the son had fallen or been knocked off the bridge, in his note Dixon bld goodbye to his wife telling her he intended to swim the Ohio. "THE ROAD TO DAMASCUS"

Pride of opinion, according to Republican leaders, has been Woodrow Wilson's besetting sin. To that sin they charge the failure to secure ratification of the peace treaty and covenant and our entrance into the League. If the charge be true, it is imperative that the men to whom the responsibilities of government have been given shall not be guilty of the same destructive error. The man of all men who must avoid that fatal mistake and hew a new path, by enlightenment and reason to agreement, is Mr. Harding.

Could Mr. Harding, in the difficult circumstances confronting him, take a wiser step at this time than that of persuading the irreconcilables within his own party, such as Senator Johnson and Borah, to go to Europe and acquaint themselves at first hand with conditions there? It would be well, too, if Senator Reed should accompany them. What effect a personal study of the European situation would have on those Senators can only be conjectured, but the experience of Mr. Wickersham warrants the belief that the judgment of those men would greatly be modified by contact with the desperate want of the Old World.

Mr. Wickersham, it will be recalled, was sent to Europe by the New York Tribune, during the sessions of the Versailles conference, to "write against the League." Whatever were his instructions, that was the public expectation. The distinguished correspondent found it impossible to cover the assignment on those lines. When he looked upon the destitution, physical and moral, of Europe, the elemental needs that could scarcely be supplied even in the victorious nations, the stark hopelessness of the vanquished, he realized that a departure from the old beaten ways was imperative, that something new under the sun had to be done—in short, that the nations of the world must organize and mass their strength and wisdom and honor for the sake of civilization.

That Senators Johnson, Borah and Reed, the conspicuously able opponents of the League, or any league, are sincere in their antagonism is not to be doubted. But as men of ability and integrity and courage they would be brave enough to change their opinion if convinced they were wrong. And as Europe, when looked upon at close range, has convinced Wickersham and Root and every other American of consequence of the League's merits, is it not likely that the irreconcilables would have the same experience as those others have had "on the road to Damascus"?

THE UNKNOWN SOLDIER

On Armistice Day, says the New York World, a British soldier, one of those buried unidentified on the field of honor and sacrifice, was reinterred with fit pomp in Westminster Abbey among the great of centuries. On the same day the body of one of the nameless heroes who at Verdun made good with his life the pledge, "They shall not pass!" was brot to Paris in a special train and similarly reburied, that his grave may be forever in the City of Light a shrine of patriotism.

When Collins wrote his matchless ode, "How sleep the brave," he had not recent heroisms to record save those of Culloden against Scots or Fontenoy against Frenchmen. In a better cause, "Freedom shall awhile repair" to the Abby grave of an unknown soldier who fought side by side with Scots and Frenchmen that there should be an end of war lords. Nor has the lofty mausoleum that Paris calls simply "The Tomb"—that of Napoleon—such austere beauty of significance as will surround this later sepulchre of an unnamed Frenchman.

The Unknown soldier is of every land and race. He is the American who swore to a residence in Canada to enlist. He is the Brazilian who went to fight for France. He is the Pole or Czech or Alsatian who slipped across the frontier to take up eager arms against the tyrant. He is the volunteer Greek of Venizelos, the Gurkha from the East, the New Zealand Maori, the American Indian.

A plain man and lowly, he died to make the world better for plain people like himself and his loved ones. It is well that a shrine is reared in his memory. Better yet will it be if the statesmen of the world do not forget the end for which he paid so dear.

New York Day-By-Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—There is a strange and distinct class of society in New York, born of an overwhelming desire to ape the rich. They provide meal tickets for the army of cheap peep-bum sculptors and devotees of every brand of lism in exchange for tawdry adulation.

A shabby seelook model marries a parvenu. She reads of Mrs. De Puyette Puyette entertaining a Tagore in her Fifth Avenue mansion. And so she goes, afield for a poet. They are not hard to find. Every Greenwich Village coffee house bulges with them. You can tell them by their long hair and soulful looks. In his circles he has arrived. His ode "The Birth of Passion" has been used as a filler at the tail end of a story in a filthy sex magazine.

He is invited to dine at the home of the newly-rich.

He speaks of his friends, Gadsky, the Russian tree love advocate. Mina, who writes free verse. Free because not one will buy it. Paul, who makes mandolins of cigar boxes and drums parodies thought up right out of his own head.

At the next visit the poet brings his brood of wastrels. The poor husband listens to talk of the gods making merry on Olympus, of Iliad weeping, the Eternal Balance and a smattering of learning they have picked up and made useful in their business. It fairly suffocates hubby and wifey reedles on her chaise longue wide eyed with astonishment.

Soon the home becomes a hang out for the professional art cadgers. Husband begins to realize that his wife is looking upon him as a filthy little tradesman. He feels all out of place. Eventually he awakens to the fact that his home has become an asylum for parasites and he kicks them out—but not until his wife has denounced him and perhaps gone away with the family jewels and a desire for a trial marriage.

There is one man I know, a mighty fine fellow who has made his money by hard work. His wife had a poem printed and aspired to higher things than little domestic duties. Every Sunday her house is filled with these hangers-on. She provides food and drink and the weekly outlay is about $100. The husband is tired of it but he loves his wife so he endures it.

The so-called "Master Mind" of the liquor traffic in New York has been arrested. A few years ago he was a $30 a week clerk. Now he is a millionaire. What prohibition came he secured a $100,000 permit, which allowed unlimited removal from bonded warehouses of whiskey and other liquors for medicine. It is charged that he was getting away with it so nicely that he sold to all comers—and then a prohibition agent came with marked bills and he was arrested. Broadway is filled with bootlegging millionaires. They may not have millions—fortunes are always exaggerated on Broadway—but they have fine cars, country homes and are living easy lives.

PEOPLE'S FORUM

HONOR THE FLAG

On this joyful day we again lift to the breeze our fathers' flag. The honored banner of the United States.

With all the wars the display of the national emblem of the United States still waves and floats out upon the breeze and we are justly proud to know that the American youth in khaki helped to keep it floating.

I know of no better method of inculcating this sentiment of our forefathers in the minds of the youth of the rising generation than an effort to inspire them with still more exalted respect and honor for the flag, that symbol of national supremacy, that emblem of the country's glory. They should be taught that that flag is not simply a banner for holiday display; that it is not merely a piece of bunting which can be purchased for a few cents in the nearest shop; but that it is the proud emblem of dignity, authority and power; that it inspired millions will spring to its defense. They should be taught that as that flag is composed of and derives its chief beauty from its different colors, so should its ample folds cover and protect its citizens of different colors.

It is for this reason I like to see the flags of war for the integrity of the union carried thru the streets in the hands of our veterans upon parade days.

Those precious war banners, bullet ridden, battle-stained, many of them but remnants of their former selves with scarcely enough left of them on which to imprint the name of the battles they have seen. Every tattered shred which flutters in the breeze is an object lesson in patriotism.

The youth of this land should be made to feel that their country's flag is to be their pillar of clouds by day and their pillar of fire by night. That it is to wave over them in victory, be their rallying point in defeat, and if perchance they offer up their lives as a sacrifice in its defense.

That flag should be kept everywhere in view. It is particularly necessary in a land like this in which there are so many who have been reared under foreign flags and who cannot be made too familiar with the flag of the great republic of the United States.

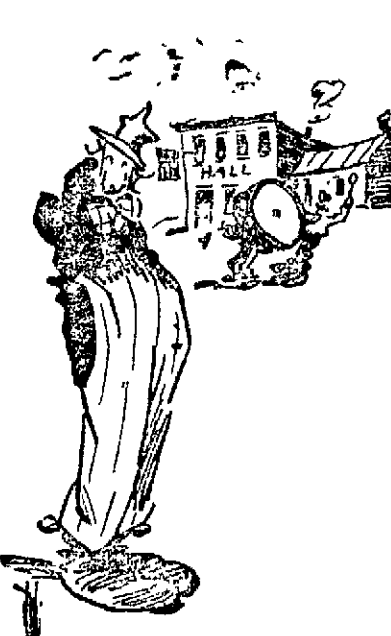

There would be nothing more grateful to the hearts of the American people than to have it ordained by na-

JAY WALKERS

The men who drive the choo-choo boats are pinched and fined some useful groats, when they're discovered speeding; and all the witnesses applauded when justice soaks them for their bad—they get just what they're needing. The motorists are much to blame, and folks are always crying, "Shame!" We daily hear their droolings, but half the trouble on the street is caused by jays who ply their feet without regard to rulings. The man on foot breaks all the laws breaks every rule that ever was, nor cares a cheap suspender; and when my auto runs him down, and spreads his fragments thru the town, I find I've no defender. The people gather round my car and talk of feathers and of tar in tones that throb with passion; the man on foot's a sacred jay; the motorist is wrong always; and still fines are the fashion. I drive my car with ceaseless care, and yet I'm always in despair, jay walkers are so busy; they get before my chugging wain, as they determined to be slain, they are so bash and dizzy. They cross the street where'er they please, between the moving cars they queue, they dodge at every angle; and when I've driven for a mile I can no longer sing and smile—my nerves are all a-jangle.

national and state enactment that the glorious banner (the flag of our country) should be hoisted over every government building, every public place, and especially over every schoolhouse.

The rallying cry for raising the flag cannot be repeated too often. If any person deliberately tears down the American flag, shoot him on the spot.

Again in memorial of the signing the armistice, Nov. 11, 1918, we erected a flag staff and have as our aim to float "Old Glory," that every pupil in our school may receive lessons in patriotism and every patron of our district may have the Stars and Stripes in sight, when weather will permit.

I may express my thots in regard to the flag and school thru the splendid poem, the author of which I do not know.

Floated the flag o'er every schoolhouse
Let its rippling folds proclaim
The power of America and her undying fame.

Let it speak of early struggles
And the victories of the past
As it sways with proud vibrations
From every schoolhouse mast.

Floated the flag o'er every schoolhouse
That its folds with silent speech
The principles of justice, courage, truth and right may teach.

Let its patriotic lessons
Be impressed on every heart
That when children meet life's battles
They may play a valiant part.

Floated the flag o'er every schoolhouse
That its rippling folds may sway
The world needs patriots and heroes
In its actions of today.

Let it call for loving service
From every mind and heart and hand
So floated the glorious Stars and Stripes

O'er every schoolhouse in the land.

Bad Stomach Sends Her to Bed for 10 Months

Eaton's Gets Her Up!

"Over a year ago," says Mrs. Dora Williams, "I took to bed and for 10 months did not think I would live. Eaton's helped me so much I am now up and able to work. I recommend it highly for stomach trouble."

Eaton's helps people to get well by taking up and carrying out the excess acidity and gases that put the stomach out of order. If you have indigestion, sourness, heartburn, belching, food repeating, or other stomach distress, take an Eaton's after each meal. Big box costs only a trifle with your druggist's guarantee.

This Month and Catarrh. Many people find that during this month, catarrh is so aggravated by sudden changes of weather, indiscretions in the matter of clothing, and other things, that it becomes constantly troublesome.

There is abundant proof that catarrh is a constitutional disease. It is related to scrofula and consumption, being one of the wasting diseases. Hood's Sarsaparilla has shown that what is capable of eradicating scrofula, also relieves catarrh, and aids in the prevention of consumption.

It is not easy to see how any sufferer can put off taking this medicine, in view of the widely published record of its remarkable success. It is called by its proprietors America's Greatest Medicine for America's Greatest Disease—Catarrh.

In some cases there is occasionally need of a thorough cathartic or gentle active, and in these cases, Hood's Pills are taken with very satisfactory results.

CHRONIC CATARRH

Follows Repeated Colds When Blood Is Impure.

Your body suffering from a cold does not properly attend to digestion and elimination. As a result your blood becomes impure, it inflames the mucous membrane and brings about that condition in which chronic catarrh occurs and on which it depends. Purify your blood, make it clean, by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and if your bowels are not healthfully active, take Hood's Pills. These medicines have relieved and prevented thousands of cases of chronic catarrh. Economy is one of the strong points of Hood's Sarsaparilla—100 doses in a bottle. Why not get it today?

elderly Scotsman, who persistently represented any innovation in the service. A generous and wealthy member of the congregation, thinking it would be desirable to have the lesson read from a lectern instead of from the prayer desk, presented the church with a handsome brass one in the form of an eagle. The minister, however, did not take kindly to the lectern, and declined to use it the first morning, but toward evening he relented, and at the close of the service he astonished and entertained his congregation by solemnly making the following announcement: "I give notice that on Sabbath next the gospel will be read from that burrd"—Edinburgh Scotsman.

HARRY PILGER ENTERTAINS PARIS WITH NEW DANCE PARTNER, GABY'S SUCCESSOR

Harry Pilger, famous dancer, and his new partner, Miss Dherihya.

Harry Pilger, famous for his dancing, and perhaps more famed as the dancing partner of the late Gaby Deslys, is appearing now on the Parisian stage at the Casino de Paris with Miss Dherihya, in the Revue, "Paris qui Jazz," which is very much like our popular girl and music revues. Pilger is known by many of the American soldiers and nurses who were in France, for both he and Gaby entertained them often by dancing and by inviting them to luncheons and dinners at Gaby's villa, which she later turned into a hospital.

Kohi-Noor a Disappointment.
The Kohi-Noor caused great disappointment at the crystal palace exhibition in London in 1851 by the inability to develop its color refractions unless surrounded by vivid lights, and was, indeed much inferior in appearance to its glass model in the tower, consequently, after much counsel and examination it was sent to Amsterdam to be cut. Much fear was felt as to the success of the operation, but the most experienced cutters were so confident of a successful issue that the undertaking was made, after great preparations, and the duke of Wellington himself went through the form of beginning the work.

Had Him Long Time.

How to Get Well.

Chicago, Ill.—"I suffered for four years with pains in my sides, hips and legs and a terrible backache. I could not do any work at all. I was treated by many physicians but they did not help me. I read in one of your books where other women had been helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I tried it and it helped me very much so that now I can do everything in the house. I have told my friends about your wonderful Vegetable Compound and you have my permission to publish my letter so other women who suffer may learn how to get well."—Mrs. J. A. OVENSTEIN, 902 S. Marshfield Ave., Chicago, Ill.

This good old-fashioned remedy is made from native roots and herbs and contains no narcotics or harmful drugs. If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

BIG BREAKS ON STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—Violent declines were suffered in the stock market in the early afternoon. Heavy selling by traders, caused losses ranging from 2 to 11 points. Many issues dropped to the lowest prices reached this year. The greatest decline was suffered in General Electric which yielded 10 points to 122. The shipping group was under severe pressure. Atlantic Gulf fell 8 points, United Fruit 5 points and American International over 4 points. Southern Pacific after holding firm for the greater part of the forenoon, slumped to 111. Other rails, rubber issues and leather, steel, oil and copper stocks were 2 to 5 points lower.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel. Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and a calomel old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative. No griping is the "key-note" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels to live and act normally. They never force them to unnatural action. If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take them every night just to keep right. Try them. 10c and 25c.

Strive To Have Healthy Skin

Next time you are in a gathering of women note the different conditions apparent in complexion. You will see some siled with blackheads, some dry and rough, some smooth and rosy, some smeared with rouge, some streaked with heavy metallic powders and once in a while you will see one that is a demonstration of intelligence from every point of view. The color is rosy, the skin is clear and smooth, the pores are small and open, the powder does not show on the firm vigorous skin. Every woman can have a good complexion if she will only use a little discretion. If you would acquire real beauty, the beauty of perfect health, you must replenish your worn-out nerves with leithin. Nature's own nerve restorer, and put into your blood the invigorating iron which Nature intended it to have for health. In most of the modern foods there is no iron. The iron elements have been largely eliminated. Yet to be healthy and beautiful the system must have them. They are found in Bio-Feren, not only in proper proportions to restore weakened vitality but in such form as the system can best assimilate. Bio-Feren is a treatment of leithin and iron, as well as a combination of Bio-Feren and leithin. It is a natural and pure substance. And Bio-Feren is its tablet form to make it pleasant to take—no liquid.

Postmaster Brings Thrift Record to His Home Town by Selling Its Citizens Most War Savings Stamps

By DON L. TOBIN.

Columbus, O.—(Special).—The thriftiest community in the United States has been discovered. It is Stafford, O., a struggling village of 170 persons, nestled in the sparsely settled hills of Monroe county, in the southeastern part of Ohio. It is 10 miles from the nearest railroad and its daily papers and mail are carried to it by automobile, but according to the United States treasury department, this country town has a rightful claim to the record of being the thriftiest spot in the nation. It was made so by Postmaster Frank Hagerman, who daily hands out the postcards, the letters and newspapers that find their way to this "nearly lost community," Hagerman made his town famous by selling its War Savings Stamps. During the past summer he sold enough in Stafford to make a per capita sale of $127 for every man, woman and child in the place. This record has not been equaled anywhere in the country. Hagerman made his community save $25,000 in three months' time.

Postmaster Hagerman in making this remarkable record tramped from home to home. He didn't spare shoe leather in working for Uncle Sam. But Postmaster Hagerman no longer walks. Sleep hills of his home community do not seem almost unsurpassable mountains to him now—for he glides noiselessly over them in a high-powered Monitor automobile presented to him by the Monitor Motor Car company of Columbus, O. Officials of the company said they didn't want to see an Ohioan go unrewarded for bringing such an honor to his native state.

Postmaster Hagerman made his excellent record in competition with all other postmasters in Ohio. Although he presides over a fourth class office, he came out victorious over the postmasters of first, second and third class offices as well. He pitted himself against the postmasters of the largest cities of Ohio and won.

"I believe War Savings Stamps are the safest investment for the people in the long run," said Hagerman. "Knowing my goods and believing in them, it was not difficult to make sales."

MT. VERNON TEAM COMING SUNDAY

Owing to some misunderstanding it was rumored that the Mt. Vernon football team had cancelled their game with the Belvedere. The manager of the local team received a wire from the Mt. Vernon management Wednesday night, stating that they would positively be here to clash with Coshocton Sunday afternoon at the Red Sea stridiron. The Belvedere have taken every team that faced them this season but the Mt. Vernon eleven. The Mt. Vernons have proved a "jinx" to the locals. Coshocton was defeated at Mt. Vernon some weeks ago by the score of 19 to 6.

Baker, Helen, Morrison, Schleich, Gray, D. Tidball, Brown, Norris, Davis, T. Williams and Clark will probably compose the team that will face the visitors.

GRID WARRIORS MAY CELEBRATE

Coshocton high will bombard the Millersburg camp at the fairground gridiron here Saturday afternoon. Plenty of ammunition has been stored away for the attack upon the Holmes county luddies when they land. The Coshocton high school tank will be put into action when Harris, Brode, Robson and Wolford strike the opposing line. The C. H. S. back field and line Saturday will be as strong as Grant's right wing when he struck Lee's forces at Gettysburg. The Millersburg team is coming fully equipped to defeat the locals. They are bringing many fans from home to help "root" them to victory. Providing the local high school team wins Saturday and the Belvedere are victors in Sunday's game the C. H. S. and the E.V.D.'s will celebrate with red fire Monday evening.

6th St. Theatre

"The largest, best and most costly of the season" is the stamp Ralph Dunbar gives to his new production of Bizet's opera "Carmen," which is to be the attraction at the 6th St. Theatre Friday, November 19.

Dunbar is a producer de luxe. Money and time are secondary considerations with him when it comes to putting out an attraction. It is his ambition to excel all others who cater to theatrical and opera patrons.

His "Carmen" is built on such extensive lines that only theatres with exceptionally large stages can be used for it. None of the scenery of the local theatre is used, nor any local properties. The company brings everything. The advance sheets to the opera house manager call for a clear stage.

Mr. Dunbar also carries a full symphonic orchestra with the famous Valentino as conductor. The members of this orchestra were rehearsed for weeks in Chicago until Mr. Dunbar, himself a cello artist of note, pronounced them perfect in their interpretation of the Bizet orchestration. Subscription seat sale now. Box of five open evenings from 6 to 8.

Useful Bacteria.
Geologists are realizing more fully, as they extend their studies, the magnitude of the work done by plants and animals in building up and tearing down parts of the crust of the earth. Even microscopic organisms perform a large part of this work. Pasteur long ago showed not only the deadly power of bacteria in disease and their efficiency in promoting fermentation, but also their influence on the fertility of soils, and their work in extending rock decay is still a subject of scientific study. Bacteria evidently not only aid in the decomposition of rocks and in the formation of beds of chalk and limestone, as has already been demonstrated, says the Scientific American, but are active in the deposition of some beds of iron ore.

If we were transported to the shores of Borneo, we might see a group of natives gathered together under the tropical palms, watching two men sitting on their haunches, facing each other across an earthenware dish containing lime-water. Each holds a clam in his raised hand, and at a signal, drops it into the lime-water. It would not occur to us that this is a court of justice, that the two men leaning over the dish are litigants, and that he whose clam first wincies on falling into the lime-water loses the case. The people of Borneo believe that their gods give this as a sign to show who is in the right.—Louis Bartlett, in Atlantic Monthly

Islands of the Antilles.
Earthquakes and hurricanes are familiar phenomena in Martinique. Likewise Guadeloupe, which is really two islands, called Grande Terre and Basse Terre, a narrow arm of the sea separating them. The former is mostly lowland, with extensive sugar plantations, while Basse Terre, despite its name, is rugged, with cloud-capped mountains that show modest signs of volcanic activity. Not far to the south is a bunch of small islands which, being regarded as one of the strategic points of the Antilles, are formidably fortified.

Uncle Walt's Story
Walt Mason
BEING A SUNBEAM

BEING A SUNBEAM

"WE HEAR and read a great deal about optimism," said the stranger, "and we go around telling our friends not to worry. The advice is good enough, but we don't pause to reflect that optimism is a mental attitude that can be reached only by study and training. What shall we study? I have here, madam, a little book entitled, 'How to Be a Sunbeam,' which answers the question fully and completely. It was written by—"

by all the statesmen and prelates in the country," exclaimed Mrs. Curfew. "I don't want to be a sunbeam, experience having taught me that I can get along better and have less trouble and tribulation, when I look as much like a meatax as possible."

"Last evening before I went to bed I was reading a book called 'Sunshine Susan.' It was about a woman who just made up her mind to be happy no matter what happened. Then her husband was brought home with a broken leg, and the two children had a number of measles simultaneously, and the house burned down, and the bank in which she had deposited her savings closed its doors, and in spite of everything she went around singing and dancing."

"If I had thought it over I might have realized that it was too good to be true. No human woman could be gay and happy in the midst of so many calamities. But I was in a sentimental mood, and when I turned out the light and went to bed I thought that I ought to be ashamed of myself for not being like Sunshine Susan, and I made up my mind I would turn over a new leaf first thing in the morning."

"So I came downstairs smiling, and I was singing all the time I was getting breakfast, and when Mr. Curfew came down he said it warmed up his whole being to see me in such a cheerful frame of mind. It reminded him of him of the time when I was sweet seventeen, and as pretty as a red wagon. Then he gradually drifted into a story to the effect that he had a great opportunity to make the finest horse trade of his career. All he needed was $7 in cash to close the transaction, and he would make at least $15 by it."

"He knew I had $7 put away in the clock to buy myself some clothes I needed the worst way. I had saved that money, a nickel and a dime at a time, and was looking forward to the time when I would have enough to go shopping and buy myself an outfit good enough for the queen of Sheba."

Mr. Curfew had been trying to borrow my savings for a long time, offering to give me his note as security, and before I read that Sunshine Susan book I always refused him, and nearly snapped his head off doing it. But that morning I was anxious to make everybody happy, so I handed him the money, and he went and made his horse trade and brought home an old crow-bait that has been sick ever since, and he spends all his time out at the barn, feeding it pills and powders, and I can't get him to do any of the chores around the place."

"The same morning Mrs. Turpentine heard me singing in the back yard, and she thought it would be a good time to borrow my patent electric washing machine, and came over for that purpose. She had asked for it a dozen times before, but I always told her to go to. Being full of sunshine that day, however, I told her she could have it and welcome, and I've never been able to use it since. The man who sold it to me says it will cost $6 for repairs, so you see what Sunshine Susan did to me."

"No, mister, I don't want any recipe for being a sunbeam, and you can take your book along to Mrs. Turpentine, in the yellow house across the street. She's the champion middle weight pessimist of this neighborhood."

Explained.
"Do you see the man yonder? Well, to my certain knowledge he is leading a double life."
"You don't say so!"
"Yes; he is a professional contortionist."

After American Stylemakers.
French creators of feminine gowns and hats have appealed for a law to prohibit the indiscriminate photographing of their models at the race tracks. They claim that American and other clothing designers are stealing fashion points from the pictures.

Close Call.
"It was a near thing, but I made it." "The operation, you mean?" "Yes. In another twenty-four hours the patient would have recovered without it and walked out on me."

Distributes Many Bibles.
During its existence of more than a century the British and Foreign Bible society has distributed approximately 25,000,000 copies of the Scriptures in more than 400 languages and dialects, the very names of some of which are unknown to many students of languages.

A Way Out
By MURIEL LEE
(© 1920, Western Newspaper Union.)

There was always something in the way of Drury Trescott telling Vinnie Steele that he loved her. In the first place, she was the burden bearer of a large and exacting family. When she was not ministering to her mother, who was a confirmed invalid, she was busy teaching, guiding and caring for her three little brothers and sisters. Then her elder brother Frank made a muddle of getting into business life, and Trescott was convinced that it would be a waste of time to attempt to win her away from her round of duties.

"I can wait," he patiently told himself. "It can't always be this way. The little ones will grow up and Frank will behave himself. What grieves me most is to see the joy of youth taken out of Vinnie's life."

So, as he told Vinnie once, they were good friends, and he hoped she would never shut him out from sharing in that treasured privilege. She responded to his manly, helpful kindnesses in behalf of herself and those she loved in a grateful, appreciative way that won his entire fidelity and devotion.

Often he fancied she appreciated his love for her and secretly thanked him for holding affairs to a bastion where they could continue their pleasant, mutual companionship, for she prized his counsel and sympathy.

"I don't know what has come over Frank," remarked Vinnie one day, "but he has certainly turned over a new leaf. I think it was a good thing for him leaving his old associates in Clinton and getting into an independent little business in the city which he writes us is quite profitable."

"Why, yes," replied Trescott. "I was in Duluth last week and found him busy, cheerful and sanguine. He has rented a space back of a stationery store and goes about selling typewriter supplies by sample. From what he tells me he is working up a very promising trade."

"I wonder how he got this start. It must have taken some capital."

"Oh, I don't think very much," Trescott hastened to say. "You see, he buys and sells close and quick and on small margins. It's a business where the volume counts."

Trescott did not wonder as to the capital, for he himself had supplied it. He had made Frank promise faithfully that he would not divulge his share in the transaction, for Trescott knew that this would worry Vinnie. He had invested only a few hundred dollars, but it was all he had, and a few months later when Mrs. Steele died, the lack of that same little cash meant a great deal to Trescott.

In other words, Trescott had figured out that now, with her cares greatly lessened, Vinnie was in a position to marry him, if she would have him. His idea was to induce Mr. Steele to remove to a house he would select, pay the rent only, and he and Vinnie would see to the rest as to household expenses and taking care of the children.

Mr. Steele opposed this, but Trescott hoped if he could raise the money to establish the new home he could be won over. Mr. Steele had a half brother in a distant section in Canada to whom he had written. The crying need of this relative, according to his own statement, was to have help. All hands would count, even the children, about the farm, and they would be assured a living if nothing more.

"I shall have to go where father does," Vinnie told Trescott in a subdued, sighful way. "It is my duty."

Trescott said nothing, but the next day took the train for Duluth. When he reached the place where he had started Frank in business he found that the latter had sold out his supplies and had gone with a band of strolling players, leaving a number of debts behind him. Trescott assumed the responsibility for these, and when he came back to Clinton was sorrowed at having to disclose the bad news to Vinnie, and knew there was now no way to provide the new home he had counted upon.

Mr. Steele was making due preparations to leave for Canada and Trescott discerned that he was surely going to lose Vinnie. It was a distressful situation and daily he could read in her form face the same gloom and disappointment that well nigh crushed him.

"A. yes good friends, no matter how many miles separate us," said Vinnie bravely more than once, but there was a lurking moisture in her eyes.

It was a week before the dreaded parting when Mr. Steele took Trescott aside. There was a manner about him that told Trescott he had something important to say. He was not wrong. In plain words Mr. Steele told of discovering all he had done for Frank.

"You are the truest friend I ever met, Trescott," he said. "Won't you take a way out of all your worry and that of Vinnie? Come with us."

"If there was a place for me," began Trescott in an uncertain, but longing way.

"Don't doubt that. I have written my half brother, told him all the circumstances, and you and wife will be doubly welcome."

Fresh Vegetables Best.
That raw food contains more of the protective elements than cooked food was shown by an experiment with pigeons fed a grain diet which had been heated to destroy the protective elements. They developed beriberi in from 40 to 80 days. Other pigeons receiving raw potato in addition to heated grain were in excellent condition during the 500 days of the experiment. The protective value of fresh raw potato was contrasted with that of dried potato in another experiment, and the results indicated that, while dried vegetables are not without value as a protection against beriberi, yet fresh vegetables are very much better.

Drug Taking and Criminality.
More than 50 per cent of those addicted to drugs have criminal histories. This is proved by the records of the department of correction, New York city.

Enforcement of these orders cuts off the gas supply from all places except homes, hospitals and plants making food products.

Gas company officials however, stated that, in all probability the gas supply here will be insufficient in homes, despite this drastic action, if the mercury falls much lower.

CHOICE BITS OF GRAFT REVEALED

MARE ISLAND, Calif., Nov. 13.—In spite of the fact that all three of the regular services are devoting the greatest part of their publicity campaigns to advertising the advantage of their respective vocational training systems, the lure of foreign lands still holds good.

Statistics compiled at the recruit depot for the Marine Corps on the West Coast show that forty-two per cent of the rookies give a desire to see the world as the most attractive inducement shown by recruiting posters, thirty-three per cent are attracted by the educational advantages, and of the remaining twenty-five per cent three out of five join the colors because of industrial depression and two out of five come in for military training.

These figures were based on the expressed desires of 500 recruits, and tally remarkably well with the experience of recruiting officers thruout the country.
